

CONSERVATION WALKS

The area of waterside grassland adjacent to Farleys Lane is managed for the benefit of wildlife and local people through the Countryside Stewardship Scheme. Hedgerows are being restored and the pond by Farleys Brook cleared of vegetation to encourage populations of birds and invertebrates. The hardstanding path follows the stream for the length of the site and allows the public to enjoy these natural features. The site can be accessed from Farleys Lane or from the railway embankment end via a footbridge. A small lay-by on the Hucknall Bypass offers limited car parking.

This access has been provided under the Department for Environment, Food & Rural Affairs' farm conservation schemes, which help farmers and land managers protect and improve the countryside, its wildlife and history. It is permissive access and no new rights of way are being created. Existing rights of way are not affected. Please follow the Country Code and observe any other requirements shown above. Do not disturb wildlife, livestock or other visitors and in particular keep dogs under control. This is working farmland so please take care; people using this site do so at their own risk. Access ends in September 2014.
